

Long-Term Embryo Storage and Roe v. Wade

The recent overturn of Roe v. Wade raises many questions, particularly among patients who have embryos stored in states with trigger laws.

The American Society of Reproductive Medicine does not currently recommend relocating embryos in response to the court's decision. Patients should talk to their providers about their concerns as there are currently no laws that put stored embryos at risk. That being said, every patient's situation is different, and we understand that moving embryos for long-term storage may provide peace of mind.

Pacific Northwest Fertility does NOT offer long-term embryo storage. We are sometimes able to accept frozen embryos from patients who currently live in Washington State and want to use our clinic to conceive within the next 6 months. For more information about that option, please contact our front desk at 206-515-0000.

This list is intended as a starting point for patients' research into long-term storage facilities and is not an endorsement of any of these companies. There are many shipping and storage companies located throughout the country, and we recommend that all patients research their options thoroughly to determine what will be the best fit for their needs.

For more information and resources about long-term embryo storage, we recommend Resolve and ASRM. More detailed state-by-state information is available at ASRM.

We wish you the best on your fertility journey!

Long-Term Storage Facilities

Facility	Testing requirements	Storage capabilities
California Cryobank Los Angeles, CA www.cryobank.com	Infectious disease testing	Embryos, eggs, sperm Not accepting any new shipments until October
CryoGam Colorado Loveland, CO www.cryogam.com	None	Embryos, eggs, sperm

Reprotech Coconut Creek FL, St. Paul MN, Reno NV, Garland TX www.reprotech.com	Infectious disease testing	Embryos, eggs, sperm
NW Cryobank Spokane, WA www.nwcryobank.com	None	Embryos, eggs
Fairfax Cryobank Fairfax VA, Philadelphia PA, Roseville MN, Pasadena CA www.fairfaxcryobank.com	None	Embryos, eggs, sperm

Fertility Couriers

Reliable fertility couriers help to ensure safety throughout every step of the embryo shipping and delivery process. This list is intended as a starting point for patients' research and is not an endorsement by PNWF of any of these companies.

Cryostork / CryoPort
www.mycryostork.com

Fertility Couriers
www.fertilitycouriers.com

Core Cryolab
www.corecryolab.com